► About Us

► Pagefolio – The Price List Publishing Specialists

Pagefolio has been helping North American business simplify their price list publishing since 1979.

Thirteen years in national sales and marketing positions in the office products industry convinced our founder that businesses needed a better way to produce and distribute price lists. To meet this need, he formed a new company, SIPS (Stationers Information Processing Services).

SIPS began as a provider of pricing systems to the office products industry.

Over the years our client base, and our name, changed. Now Pagefolio is a recognized leader in the field of price list publishing. By focusing on the unique requirements of complex pricing documents, we've been able to develop specialized tools and techniques that reduce costs and add value.

Companies across North America rely on Pagefolio for a broad range of price list services. Many of these businesses have been with us from the start, a testament to our corporate goal of building long-term relationships with our clients.

Our modern facility houses the latest industry technology. That includes all the tools needed to develop, produce and distribute hard copy price lists. We also meet the growing demand for electronic media, so our clients can publish their price lists on CDs and DVDs, or distribute them by e-mail broadcast or over the Web.

► Confidentiality and security are top priorities

Price lists are highly sensitive documents. We're acutely aware how important it is to keep client data confidential.

We're equally serious about protecting their data from loss. Our own on-site Internet server with full high speed connectivity ensures fast and secure data transmission with our clients. We back up all data daily and store backup media off-premises, along with historical archives. Hardware protection includes redundancy planning, battery backup and full firewall protection.

Thorough and detailed procedures and controls ensure we deliver the high level of accuracy and consistency our clients demand. These procedures are carried out by veteran employees who are proud of their reputation as skilled and knowledgeable problem solvers.
